The remains of John Howard Pavne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home," were interred on Saturday at Oak Hill cemetery in the beauful spot selected by his early friend, Mr. W. W. Corcoran, of this city, who defrayed the entire cost of removing his dust from Tunis and erecting a monument to his memory. The procession to the cemetery was marshaled by General R. B. Ayres, U. S. A., and included the various military organizations of the District and de-tachments from the Regular army. The site chosen for the monument is one of great natural beauty. It rests on the crest of the hill near the main entrance, and about midway on the lawn between the fountain and the chapel. The shaft, of white marble, is surmounted by the bust, one-half larger than life size, is supported on a base of solid gray granite, six feet square. The height of the monument is fourteen feet, and its general design is Roman of the pure classical type. The face of the bust is turned towards the east, and represents the post after he had passed out of his young manhood and had been saddened by his struggles against adversity. The features are somewhat sharpened, and are marked by lines of care. On the front of the shaft is the inscription: "John Howard Payne, author of 'Home, Sweet Home, born June 9, 1792, died April 10, 1852. On the back is this inscription, which was on the tombstone that marked his grave in Tunis: "Sure when thy gentle spirit fled

Memorial Day at Longmont was bright and clear, and there was a large turn out of veterans and citizens. The services were conducted at the opera house under the auspices of McPherson Post, and in the procession were the Ladies' Auxiliary, the Odd Fellows of Erie and Longmont, and two hundred school children. Post Commander B. L. Carr directed the exercises, and music was furnished by the Erie cornet band and a choir led by Mr. J. Lincoln. The oration was delivered by the Hon. W. S. Decker, of Denver, after which Miss Harrigan read Mrs. Kate Brownlee Sherwood's beautiful poem recently published in these columns. The procession to the cemetery was more than a mile in length, and the flowers, furnished by the Ladies' Auxiliary, were abundant and beautiful.

Post No. 22, of Colorado Springs, Colo., assisted by its Ladies' Auxiliary, the military, firemen and citizens, observed Memorial Day in an appropriate manner. The comrades met at the Post hall at 8 a. m., and, under command of Commander L. E. Sherman, proceeded to the headquarters of the Ladies' Auxiliary, where the flowers had been collected. Both organizations then took the cars to Evergreen cemetery, where Grand Army services were conducted and the graves decorated. NEW MEXICO.

Memorial Day at Las Vegas, New Mexico, was observed with imposing ceremonies. The procession to the cemetery, under the direction of Marshal Harry J. Franklin, was a brilliant spectacle. The military escort of Thomas Post, which turned out seventy-eight veterans with a firing squad of four, included the Santa Fe Guards, the Albuquerque Guards, and the San Miguel Rifles, the Las Vegas hose companies also accompaning the Post. An attractive feature of the pageant was a liberty car, in which Miss Carrie Dyer personated the Goddess, attended by little girls dressed in pure white, each wearing a silken ribbon bearing the name of the State or Territory which she represented. The procession was headed by the new Mexican band of fifteen pieces, followed by Governor Lionel A. Sheldon and staff, mounted and in uniform. In the carriages were Senator John A. Logan, Mayor Romero, and other distinguished guests, When the line reached the cemetery the several commands took position around the speaker's stand and Commander J. J. Fitzgerrell, of Thomas, called the assembly to order and announced the Hon, Francisco A. Manzanares as Day; Pawnee cornet band. The city schools, President of the day. The Rev. M. H.
